

Federal funding helps keep our transit system in a state of good repair and supports the mobility needs of our nation's cities that drive the US economy.

- Ed Reiskin, SFMTA Director of Transportation

Some of our infrastructure is more than 100 years old. We need to maintain a strong local-federal partnership to ensure that riders are safe and our system reliable.

As San Francisco and the Bay Area continues to grow, so does ridership. This means more demand on our infrastructure, which requires more maintenance, and investments to strategically expand our fleet.

Going forward, we will rely more on transit systems as we accommodate more trips in our cities and do so with clean, safe, sustainable modes of transportation.

Federal funding is not just important to transportation, but to the sustainability and overall growth of the Bay Area economy.